

SANDBOARDING CAPE TOWN FULL DAY

ADRENALINE LEVEL 3

Decades ago there was only surfing and skiing in its early stages and today there are a myriad of off-shoot sports such as snowboarding, kiteboarding and, of course, sandboarding. All of these 'boarding' sports have added a new adrenalin dimension to the lives of many, adding scope for turning tricks and pulling off aerial and other stunts. In a nutshell, sand boarding is the wildest ride down a sand dune you will ever take and the most wicked way to get from point A to point B while turning tricks that turn heads.

INTINERARY

Just in case you are wondering, no, you are not going to ride the dunes like a surfer rides the waves. In fact, a sandboard looks very similar to a snowboard; your feet get locked into place on the board to make sure that you don't slip off. The base for the board is also specialized so that it actually becomes more and more slippery the more action is seen. This means that a weathered board is actually a better ride than a brand new one. Other than that difference and the fact that the ride is on sand and not snow, there isn't much of a difference between sand and snowboarding. So whether you are a total beginner to any type of boarding or you have dabbled in the snow before, come and give the sandy side a try, you are guaranteed to have a blast.
