INTRO

People flock here every year; locals and tourists alike, to be part of the awesome spectacle when the giants of the deep come into the Bay.

Walker Bay, Gansbaai and whale watching simply goes together as it you get some of the very best whale watching of the Southern Right Whales here every year during their migration season. People flock here every year; locals and tourists alike, to be part of the awesome spectacle when the giants of the deep come into the Bay.

Whale watching from the shore is exciting yes, but nothing can compare to the experience of boat-based whale watching as you get so much closer to these magnificent creatures.

This is our specialty; taking people on marine safari trips our vessel, the Ivanhoe. We are a legal permit holder for the Walker Bay area, Overberg sub-area 2 of Walker Bay.

To make sure our passengers only get the best we make sure of SATOUR registered specialist whale guides that narrate and answer questions during the trip.

MORE

Location

Walker Bay, Gansbaai, Western Cape, South Africa (approximately 2 hours drive from Cape Town)

What we offer:

- Briefing before departing on trip.
- Whale watching marine safari lasting approximately 2 hours 30 Minutes to find the whales, an hour spent with them and then 30-minute trip to get back to Gansbaai harbour.

INTINERARY

Take Note:

- Passengers are requested to report to our office 30 minutes before departure time so that they can book in and attend a briefing.
- We arrange whale watching trips the evening before the reserved trip date and this must be confirmed between client and us by 8am on the day of the whale watching trip. This is necessary as the weather can be unpredictable.
- Trips normally depart between 10am and 11am each morning.

More about the boat

We use the vessel, Ivanhoe, which is a catamaran, for our marine safari trips. She has been designed to be a 'dry boat' and this means that people do not get wet, doing away with the need for foul weather gear or rain suits.

We can accommodate 40 passengers, but we limit passengers to 30 for each trip to enable everyone to be seated. There is a high-up whale watching deck as well as a lower deck that has all-round viewing. There are large cabins and private toilet facilities on board as well.

Additional Information:

We also offer eco-marine safari trips to Dyer Island with a duration of 1 hours. The trip takes us to the world-renowned Shark Alley between Geyser Rock and Dyer Islands to visit the Cape Fur Seal colony.

On this trip you can expect to see thousands of Cape Fur Seals and their pups. This colony is the most southern breeding habit of the Fur Seals. African penguins also frequent these waters and there are a huge variety of pelagic birds that are always to be seen. It is also not uncommon on these trips to spot dolphin and even a Great White Shark or an Orca.
